ChargePoint processes the payment for paid charging sessions for the station owner or roaming partner. You can always check pricing in the app and filter for stations that are free and do ...

EV charger locations can be easily found through the ChargePoint app or website, which provides information about costs, hours of operation, additional fees, and the type of charging ...

EV drivers, find support around the most frequently asked questions on finding, using, and paying for your sessions at ChargePoint stations and more.

ChargePoint ... ChargePoint

We set the rates at approximately 2x the electricity rate for residents of the building and 3x for guests/public. The chargepoint software gives an approximation of what the equivalent price per ...

I've seen random session fees at a few L2 Chargepoint chargers (car dealers, hotels ...) over the last decade. I assumed it was by request of the tenant operator. Looks like Chargepoint is ...

If you are signing up through a specific program for your apartments and there is a monthly subscription fee, then it's your apartments charging the fee to make an extra profit off their tenants, not Chargepoint.

As already pointed out, Chargepoint doesn't set the prices for the vast majority of chargers since they only maintain them and handle the money. Prices are up to the owner.

Instead of a typical subscription, the Essential plan uses a portion of the payments from EV drivers to cover a small software fee. Any extra revenue goes directly to the station owner each...

Unless your Charging Host decides to pre-pay for Services, you must pay a monthly fee ("Monthly Service Fee") in order to receive Services. Price information for the Services may be found in the ...
